Two questions

HAVING criticized Unofficials on a number of occasions recently for not playing their part as the people's representatives with the openness and alertness that the community has a right to expect, we feel it only fair to compliment the two MLCs who asked questions in the Council on Wednesday. One was extremely important — what did Lord Perth mean when he said no radical or major constitutional changes would be permitted? For although we concluded this meant no elected MLCs, the Reform Club and the Association exploited Lord Perth's ambiguity by welcoming his remarks. Yesterday's clarification puts an end to needless speculation and the Reform-Club group must accept this as the final, irrevocable answer to their London proposals.

Mr R. C. Lee's question touched on the British Government's aid plan for colonial civil services in territories which are becoming self-governing and he properly asked why Hongkong had been excluded. The scheme was devised mainly with Africa in mind and what it means is that newly-independent governments will be able to employ trained overseas officers at not much more than the cost of local men.

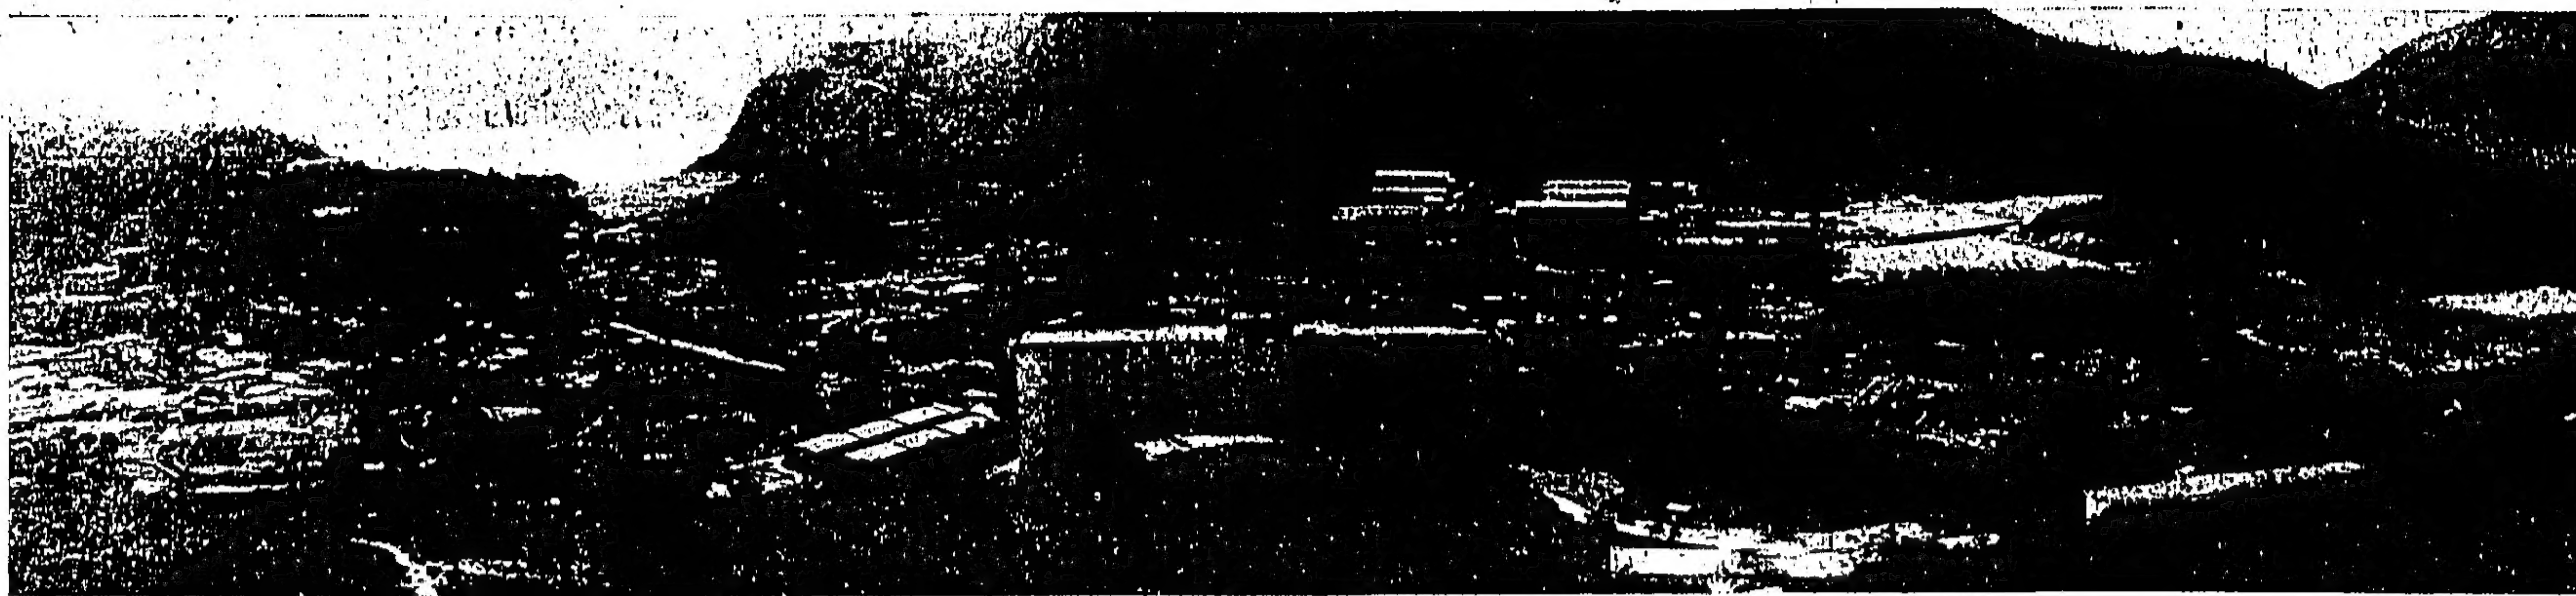

The main object of the plan is also to persuade British officials to stick at their posts by paying inducement allowances, additional pensions based on them, children's allowances, half the cost of passage, and so on. The cost of compensation for loss of career.

The aid scheme is obviously not one that applies to Hongkong yet. But it is a measure which will enable Government to deal with the financial help of the British Government to increase the local element in the senior civil service without causing an upsetting and damaging exodus of valuable men at the top worried about the imminence of the axe.

It is to be hoped therefore that Government will in due course seek to be associated with the scheme. For it offers a means of reducing the high cost of the expatriate civil service as well as a way of substantially increasing the numbers of senior local men in the administration in accordance with our professed ideal of partnership.

Hongkong should not be ineligible for any plans that the Colonial Office is throwing around simply because it is a colony and is going to remain one. Indeed, the fact that we make such modest demands on the British Government despite our severe commitments, should entitle us to consideration when we have a special claim for assistance.

These paddy-fields will become a high-class residential suburb

A TUNNEL UNDER MT CAMERON

Govt. plan to open up new industrial area

BY A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

Government is considering building a tunnel under Mount Cameron to open up the area between Deepwater Bay and Aberdeen to large-scale development.

This tunnel under the mountain would bring Deepwater Bay to within three miles of the city centre, or half the distance it now takes vehicles to travel via Wongneichung Gap.

Government believes the tunnel is the only way to open up this area and to ensure that Aberdeen becomes a big industrial and residential area.

STOP PRESS

THE VOTE COUNT

U.S. Presidential voting returns at 2330 GMT from 163,829 of 166,072 voting units:
Kennedy 33,548,905 (50.2 per cent).
Nixon 33,249,044 (49.8 per cent).
Kennedy led in 23 states with 332 electoral votes; Nixon in 26 states with 191; needed to win 269.—AP.

The tunnel, it is estimated, would be just over a mile long. Its approach road on the Aberdeen side would be from the Grantham Tuberculosis hospital and it would emerge at Stubbs-road about three-quarters of a mile above Queen's-road East.

Cost of the tunnel would vary according to how elaborately it is built, but it is believed this could be done for between $8 million and $10 million.

This would be much more than the cost of building an ordinary road. The cost of building the two-mile Kowloon footpaths road is only about $3 million.

'NO COMMENT'

The China Mail asked Government soon after 9 am this morning to confirm this news but up to the time of going to press at 2 pm the PWD had made no comment through the Information Service Department despite a number of reminders.

But the advantage of the tunnel is that it would be an incentive to development of an area which Government believes has big possibilities.

Part of the area, between Aberdeen and Deepwater Bay now occupied by paddy fields and vegetable gardens (see picture above) would become a high-class residential area. Factories would be confined to Aberdeen where two big reclamations are being undertaken and a giant typhoon shelter. All this is part of a ten-year development plan now being discussed at high level.

On the Deepwater Bay side there is already a high-class residential area in Little Hongkong. Luxury homes are being built on Brick Hill and the International Country Club has a site on the flat. It is understood Government also plans a public recreation area in the same neighbourhood.

EARTHQUAKE

Florence, Nov. 10. An earthquake shook the Tuscan hills north of Florence today, sending residents of several villages into the streets in panic.

No serious damage or casualties were reported, however.—UPI.

DAWN ATTACK ON PALACE
PARATROOPERS' COUP
BID IN SAIGON

Saigon, Nov. 11.

Four paratroop battalions today began a pre-dawn coup in an attempt to overthrow President Ngo Dinh Diem's South Vietnam Government.

The paratroopers were identified as in charge of security in Saigon. The coup attempt began at 3 am.

All traffic was cut off from outside the city.

The President's office was placed under guard. The coup was led by Colonel Nguyen Van Thy.

An estimated 15 paratroopers were killed in an attack on the Presidential Palace.

The fate of President Diem was not yet known.

General Le Van Ty, Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces was placed under arrest.—AP.

ST LAURENT

'UNFIT'
FOR ARMY SERVICE

Paris, Nov. 10. Yves Mathio Saint Laurent, 24-year-old top designer for the Fashion House of Dior was today discharged as unfit by a French Army medical commission, according to a Dior spokesman.

The decision was reported to have been taken yesterday and Mr Saint Laurent left the Paris military hospital of Val-de-Grace for a private clinic this morning.

Defence Ministry officials said they had no immediate confirmation of the report, but said it was "most likely correct".

The young designer who has been in hospital since he was called up for military service early in September is expected to spend some time convalescing in Switzerland before making a decision on his professional future.—Reuter.

TERRORISM IN PARIS

Seven Algerians
die in savage
burst of gunfire

Paris, Nov. 10.

Three terrorists burst into an Algerian cafe in north Paris tonight and let loose a vicious 30-second fusillade of sub-machine gun fire.

Police said seven of the patrons, all Algerians, were killed and another seriously injured.

The attackers, who police believe belonged to the underground Algerian National Movement (MNA), fled immediately.

VIOLENCE

It was the most savage armed violence in Paris for many months.

Eye-witnesses said the three men jumped out of a car in front of the "Accordien Bar" in the Epinay Factory district.

One threw open the door of the red-curtained cafe and stood aside while his companions opened fire on the 10 patrons.

A few cries of terror were drowned in the roar of the sub-machine gun. Thirty seconds later the little cafe was a shambles, with pools of blood around the victims' bodies.

Moscow's
'summit'

Moscow, Nov. 10.

The Communist bloc's "summit" meeting, attended by the leaders of 12 states opened in the Kremlin today, according to usually well-informed sources.

Two sources said the "summit" has before it a draft agreement for discussions which may last up to a week.—Reuter.

'ROBOT STATIONS ON MOON'

Moscow, Nov. 10.

A top-ranking Soviet scientist predicted today that "robot space stations will soon be established on the moon" as the first of a series of exploratory steps leading up to a moon landing by spacemen, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

The prediction was made by Nikolai Barabanov, member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, writing in the Academy's official publication "The Monitor".—AP.

COURT BANS MEMOIRS BY EX-FOOTMAN

London, Nov. 10.

Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother obtained an injunction here today against a former footman at Clarence House, her London home, according to a statement issued by a London firm of solicitors.

The injunction, granted by Mr Justice Theobald sitting in chambers, restrained the defendant, David John Payne, from publishing any article or book about his period in the Queen Mother's service.

The statement said the injunction restrained Payne from "writing or permitting his name to be used in connection with any book, article or publication in the press or otherwise concerning any incident or conversation which may be within his knowledge by reason of his having been in the plaintiff's service."

The injunction also restrained Payne from publishing any information about the Queen Mother or any member of the Royal family, or on any matter which might concern them, which might be communicated to the Press.

The order made by the Judge allowed Payne to apply for the discharge of the injunction, the statement concluded.

In September 28-year-old Mr Payne said he was considering an offer to join another former Royal servant, Mr Thomas Cronin, in America.

THE QUEEN MOTHER

Mr Cronin was butler to Princess Margaret and Mr Antony Armstrong-Jones, but left their services about three weeks after they had moved into their Kensington Palace home.

Mr Payne was footman to Princess Margaret for about a year before her wedding to Mr Armstrong-Jones. He left Clarence House shortly before the wedding.

The first of eight instalments of Payne's memoirs appeared in a Paris newspaper last week-end.—Reuter.

NOTICE

CHINA LIGHT & POWER CO., LTD.

NOTICE TO SHAREHOLDERS

The following is an extract from a letter dated 20th January, 1960, from the Acting Colonial Secretary to the Company:

"I am directed to refer to the Report of the Electricity Supply Companies Commission which has been published to-day.

"2. I am to inform you that, should Government introduce legislation to control the operations of, or acquire the assets of your Company in consequence of the Report, there would be included in such legislation provisions relating to the distribution of dividends and safeguarding of assets during the period from the date of publication of the Report to the date of imposition of control, or of acquisition of the undertaking operated by your Company.

"3. As regards dividend distribution, I am to inform you that the legislation would provide:

"(a) that if the rate of dividend for the accounting year 1959/60 or any succeeding accounting year has been increased without the authority of the Governor beyond the latest rate adopted or publicly forecast prior to 10th April, 1959, such excess would be recoverable from all persons who were Directors of your Company at the time of the passing of the Resolution of Directors authorising or recommending such distribution;

Shareholders will see that without authority from the Governor the Company's dividend cannot be higher than that declared and paid in respect of the year 1957/58. Two applications were made for such authority, the second one on 29th October, 1960. Both were refused.

Accordingly notice is hereby given that the Directors of the China Light & Power Co., Ltd. will be obliged to recommend at the Company's next Annual General Meeting a Final Dividend of 60 cents per share making a total of $1.10 per share for the year ended 30th September, 1960.

By Order of the Board of Directors,
A. A. M. Onslow,
Secretary & Chief Accountant.

WEEKLY REPORT ON THE HONGKONG STOCK EXCHANGE

A FAVOURABLE TREND

U.S. election had little effect

The result of the American presidential elections did little to change the upward trend of the Hongkong stock market during the week.

There were increases in the volume of business done and prices of most stocks.

The market is expected to continue steady until America's President-elect Mr. John Kennedy takes over office in early January, 1961.

Many stock brokers have taken their election with optimism. They believe that his policies will have a favourable effect on Hongkong's economy as a whole. Buyers were very hesitant and there was little trading soon after the opening of business yesterday morning. The day after the American election, however, the market picked up and closed firm.

A feature of business was the sustained increase in Banks which kept firm at $1.31 1/2 yesterday, compared with $1.30 1/2 the previous week.

The approximate turnover for the week from last Friday to yesterday was $20,210,000, compared with $13,340,000 for the same period of the previous week.

Wheelocks continued to be a big attraction. A total of $1,450 shares at $8.55, $8.60, $8.65, $8.70 and $8.75 were transacted yesterday.

Light showed a good increase at $60 (up to $2.50). Watsons and Lights also continued to increase.

The Board of Directors of China Light and Power Company Limited announced today that at the next annual general meeting they will recommend a final dividend of 60 cents per share, making a total of $1.10 per share for the year ended September 30, 1960. Comparative closing figures show the following:

Banks: Hongkong Bank increased by $2 1/2 to $1.31 1/2. Insurance: United remained steady at $1.25; Lombards were steady at $1 1/2. Utilities: Trams gained 60 cents at $32 1/2; Star Ferry rose by $1 at $173; Yau Ma Tei gained $1 at $103 1/2; Lights gained 70 cents at $24.90; Electrics moved up by 50 cents at $20.10; Telephone gained 25 cents at $30 1/2.

Shipping: Wheelocks gained 65 cents at $8.75.

Docks, Wharves and Godowns: Hongkong Wharf was quoted nominally at $24 1/2, a rise of $1.90 over last week's buyer price; Docks gained $2 at $108; Talko Docks lost 50 cents at $64; Provident were steady at $21.60.

Lands, Hotels and Buildings: Hongkong Hotels lost 25 cents at $12 1/2; Leasie rose by $2.50 at $60; Realities gained 2.5 cents at $1.90.

Industrials: Cements increased by $1 at $56 1/2.

Stores: Dairy Farms gained 75 cents at $32 1/2; A. S. Watson went up by 75 cents at $31; Lane Crawford gained 25 cents at $41.

Cottons: Textiles gained 10 cents at $8.95; Nanyang gained 50 cents at $15.

Investments: Internationals gained 35 cents at $8.85; Allied declined 20 cents at $14 1/2.

Market diary

Friday: The market kept firm throughout the day and with the exception of China Lights and Wheelocks which improved to $24.60 and $8 1/4 respectively, all others remained practically unchanged. The approximate turnover was $3,645,000. Dividend and bonus announcements during the week: Wheelock, Marden and Company 60 cents per share.

Monday: The market opened the week quite briskly. Interest being chiefly centred in Wheelocks and Lights. The former were done at $8.40 and $8.45, while Lights registered useful gains on some unconfirmed reports of future plans. Some late profit-taking caused a slight drop at the end of the day's trading, but the net gain was $1. The market remained strong until the close and the day's turnover was approximately $3,600,000.

Tuesday: The market opened selective but strong. Lands and Banks were in demand and both registered gains in response. Wheelocks advanced still further after yesterday's rise. The market was popular but failed to establish a particular trend, buyers and sellers being roughly balanced. Later in the day interest became more widely spread and remained very strong to the close. The approximate turnover was $5,545,000.

Wednesday: The market was particularly brisk in this half day's trading. The predominance of buyers over sellers for Banks sent the price up to $1.34 1/2. Wheelocks went up further while Talko Docks were steady. Lands increased still further on bank demand, and both the Electric companies were irregular over a very small range in price. Among the stores, Dairy Farms were the only shares to attract attention. The market generally closed very strong indicating that the recent trend continues. The turnover was approximately $3,390,000.

Thursday: The market opened hesitantly which might be expected as very few but the experts whose prognostications are only offered belatedly after the event really knew what the effect of the American elections will be. Almost every share during the morning session wavered in both directions unable to establish any trend, but without any significant change. Confidence returned in the afternoon and gains predominated which reflected the strong and steady undertone of the market in Hongkong. The approximate turnover was $4 million.

Unemployment rises in U.S.

Washington, Nov. 10. Unemployment in the United States increased by 101,000 to 3,578,000 in October in spite of a normal tendency for it to decline in autumn.

Some Democratic leaders said during the last days of the election campaign that the government was deliberately holding back the figures because they would turn Vice-President Nixon's chances. Reuters.

Wall Street shows big gains in late buying wave

New York, Nov. 10. Stocks rallied sharply in the closing minutes today to stretch a mild gain into a substantial increase.

The tape lagged at least two minutes behind transactions as the initial list surged forward on news under what brokers characterized as a "Kennedy market."

Apparently accounting for the late minute buying wave were reports of substantial government spending for defense anticipated in the new Kennedy administration and other economic changes.

Contributing to the eighth consecutive stock market gain was support around 7:30 a.m. by Texas Instruments 7; IBM 4; Alcoa 2; General Motors 1; International Paper 2; Heinz 4 1/2; Universal Match 3; General Tyre 3; Haver over 4; AMP 2; Piper 2 1/2; General Electric over 2; and American Motors 1 around a point.

Gold shares and a few oil shares were the only losers. Today's volume was 4,030,000 shares.

Of a total 1,231 shares traded 853 were higher and 203 lower. American Exchange volume was 98,000 shares.

Bonds volume amounted to $6,470,000.

London stocks steady

London, Nov. 10. The stock market closed today on October's record steel production and Wall Street's good overnight showing.

Steels and motors led a fractionally higher industrial list. Gold mining stocks finished with declines outnumbering gains. Coppers were higher and the firm.

Oils improved. Rubber issues were steady, less dull. Gilt-edged securities met demand on lower bank rate expectations following the cut in the German discount rate.

Chinese bonds advanced apparently on report of improvement in U.S.-Chinese relations. Dollar stocks were higher.—UPI.

President-elect Kennedy announces his main task: 'A JUST AND LASTING PEACE'

KENNEDY — A pledge

Reply to cable from Khrushchev

Hyannis Port, Nov. 10. President-elect John Kennedy today told Mr Nikita Khrushchev that his main task on assuming the Presidency would be a just and lasting peace.

The Senator, replying to a message of congratulations received from the Soviet Prime Minister last night, sent a telegram saying: "I am pleased to have your good wishes at this time."

He said that the achievement of a just and lasting peace would remain "a goal of this nation and a major task of its President."

Senator Kennedy, holding his first press conference since his election victory, read out the text of his message.

Mr Khrushchev said in his message last night that he hoped Soviet-American relations under the new President would follow the line along which they were developing in President Roosevelt's time.

The Senator told his press conference that Mr Allen Dulles and Mr J. Edgar Hoover had agreed to his request to continue as Director of the Central Intelligence Agency and head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, respectively.

The President-elect also announced that he had agreed to President Eisenhower's suggestion for a liaison group to arrange for the transfer of authority.

Mr Kennedy's telegram to President Eisenhower said: "I look forward to meeting with you and I again express my appreciation for your co-operation."

Mr Kennedy said he would leave tomorrow for a short holiday at Palm Beach, Florida, and planned to visit the Vice-President-elect, Mr Lyndon B. Johnson, at his ranch in Texas sometime next week.

No trips yet

He said that by late November or early December he hoped to be able to announce all his choices for the Cabinet.

Asked whether he intended to give Mr Adlai Stevenson a major role in the Cabinet, Mr Kennedy said that he talked to Mr Stevenson on the telephone yesterday "on a matter which I prefer to postpone until I come back (from holiday)."

Asked if he had any Presidential goodwill trips abroad in mind, Mr Kennedy replied: "I haven't any plans for any trips at the present time. Goodwill trips should be approached with some caution. There is a limit to their usefulness."

He added that maybe there were occasions when it was in the national interest for the President to go abroad, but it was a matter to be carefully considered.

Asked about his own physical condition in the light of the back injury which he suffered in the last war, the President-elect said that injury had been cleared up and added: "My health is excellent."

He said he did not have any definite date to see President Eisenhower. He said he would return to Washington after his holiday and at that time, depending on President Eisenhower's schedule, hoped to have a chance of meeting him, probably at the end of November.

Mr Kennedy said he had appointed Mr Kenneth O'Donnell to be his special assistant at the White House. Mr Theodore Sorenson, as special counsel to the President, and Mr Pierre Salinger as press secretary to the President.

He also announced the appointment of a Negro, Mr Andrew Hatcher, to serve as associate press secretary.

Asked if he was surprised by the narrowness of his popular vote over Vice-President Richard Nixon, Mr Kennedy said it was a close election as he had always said it would be.

But, he added, he did not expect it to be quite as close as it turned out to be.

"There were many problems present for us in this campaign, but we finally emerged successful," he observed.

"I went to the country with very clear views as to what the United States ought to do in the 1960's. I have been elected and, therefore, I am going to do my best to implement those views and meet my responsibilities."

"I am confident Congress will meet their responsibilities."

"While I am in that office I will do my best for the country and I am confident Congress will take the same view."

Responsibility

To a question whether he would ask President Eisenhower to help the new administration, the President-elect said he had given it some thought but could not go into it until he had first talked to Mr Eisenhower.

He gave the same answer to a question whether he would seek the services of Vice-President Nixon.

The President-elect did not agree with a suggestion that Mr Nixon's election defeat was a "repudiation" of the Eisenhower administration.

He said he thought it was a victory for the Democratic party which had now been given responsibility by a majority of the American people.

"The margin was narrow but the responsibility is clear," Mr Kennedy remarked. "I did not think Mr Nixon or the Republicans need feel that they have been repudiated. That is far too strong a word." — Reuters.

1 killed in explosion

Oran, Algeria, Nov. 10. A grenade exploded inside a bus in the heart of this heavily guarded city tonight.

Police said one person was killed and five seriously injured in an unexplained explosion of explosive fire which broke out after the attack. A passing motorist was injured.

One suspect was picked up shortly after the explosion at 7.50 pm, police said. The bomb was found in the city already was under a tight police guard against possible rising terrorism. — UPI.

SARAH'S 7TH DRUNKENNESS CHARGE IN TWO YEARS

London, Nov. 10. Sir Winston Churchill's daughter Sarah was brought into court on a charge of drunkenness today for the seventh time in the past two years.

Accepting her plea of guilty, a Magistrate put the 45-year-old actress on probation for 12 months.

If arrested again on a similar charge she could be jailed.

A police officer testified he took Miss Churchill into custody on Wednesday night when he found her trying to force her way into a nightclub.

"When told to go away she became very violent," the constable testified. Miss Churchill appeared before the same Magistrate, R. H. Blundell, on a similar charge on July 14.

He fined her £2-10-0 on that occasion, but warned he would take more drastic action if she came before him again. — AP.

GAITSKELL GETS AN ALLY

London, Nov. 10. Mr George Brown, MP, 44, Labour defence spokesman, was tonight elected Deputy Leader of the Labour Party, bringing Mr Hugh Gaitskell a strong ally in his fight to retain control of the fading Socialist movement.

In a secret ballot of the 254 Labour MPs, Mr Brown defeated Mr Fred Lee, MP, by 140 votes to 83.

BOTTOM

Originally Mr James Callaghan, Labour's "Shadow" Colonial Secretary, was also a contestant for the Deputy Leadership, but in a preliminary ballot last week he came bottom of the poll and was eliminated from the election.

Mr Brown, like Mr Gaitskell, is a staunch supporter of collective security. — Reuters.

SHAKE-UP IN U.S. FOREIGN SERVICE PLANNED

Hyannis Port, Nov. 10. A major shake-up in Washington particularly in the Foreign Service is being planned by the Kennedy Administration when it moves into office in January, sources close to the President-elect said tonight.

Senator John Kennedy is understood to be determined to end the past practice whereby contributions by wealthy businessmen to Party campaign funds was regarded as opening the door for appointments as Ambassadors.

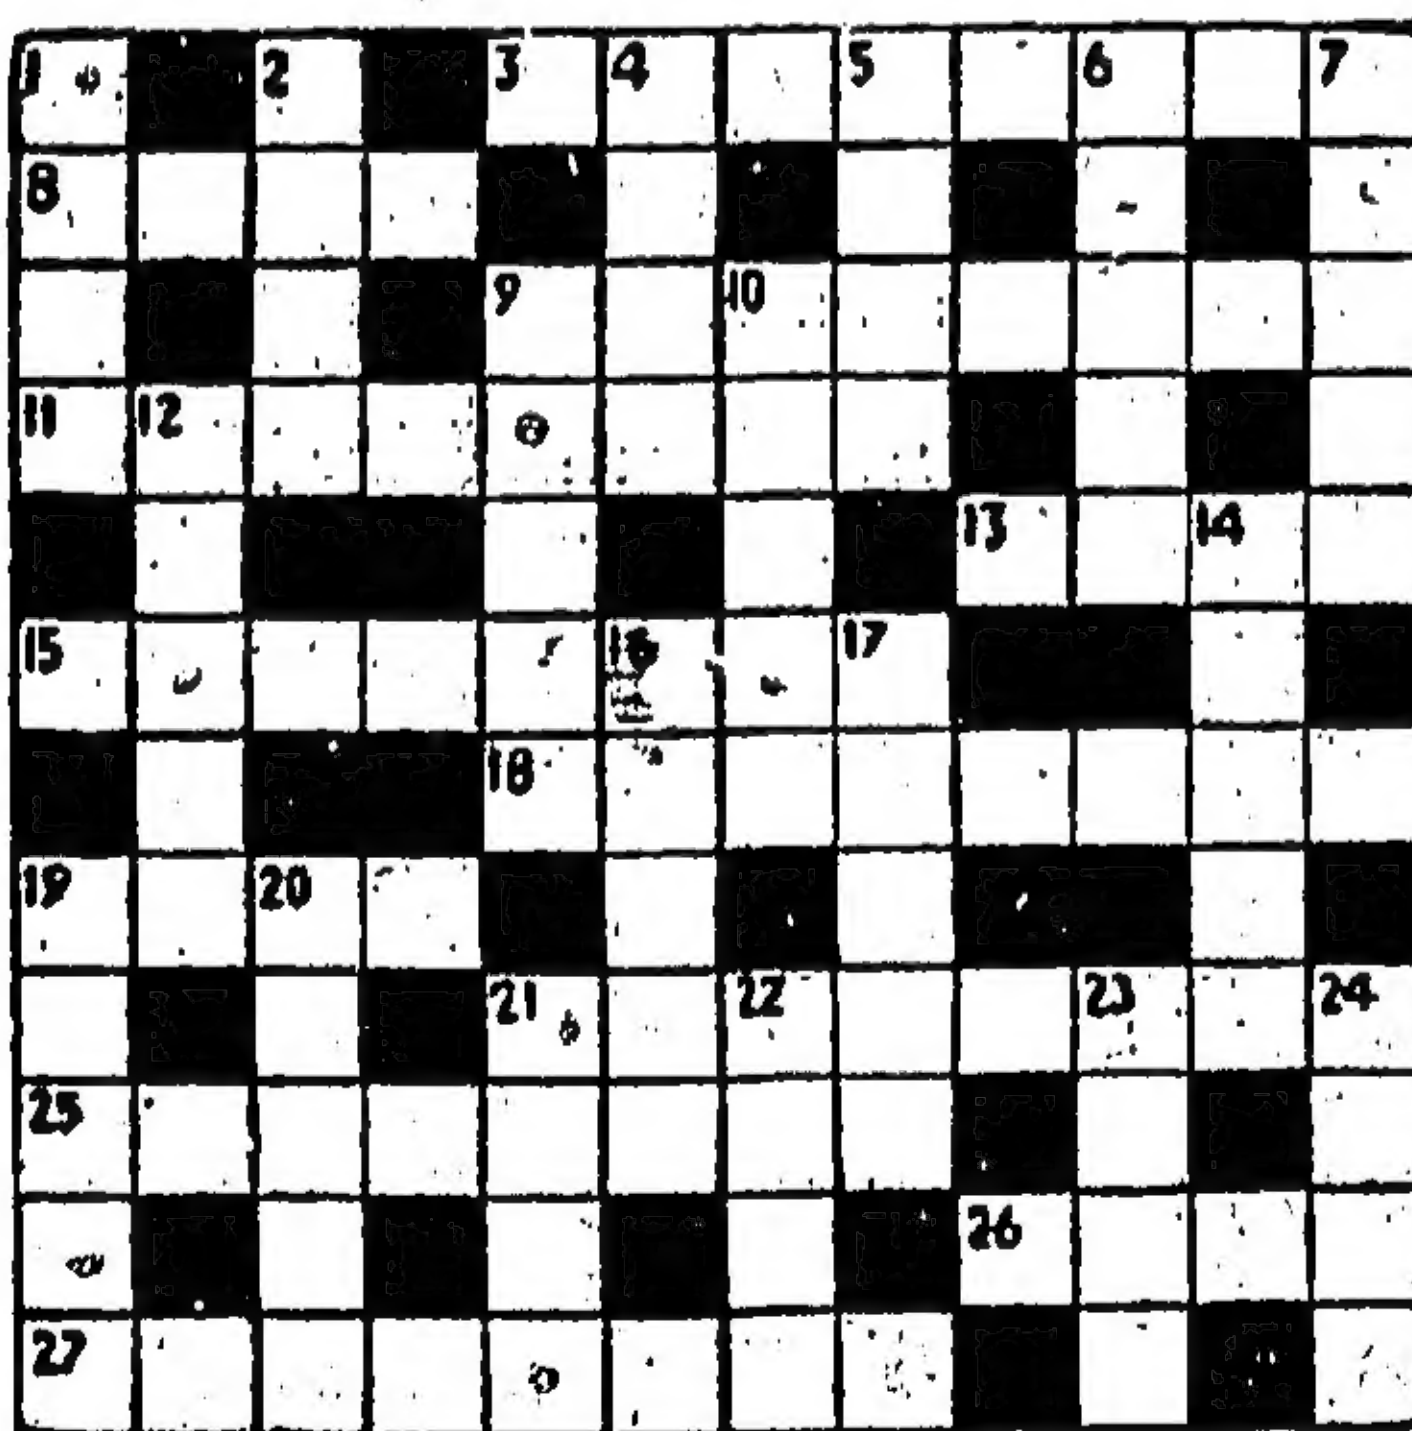

The sources said that two individuals had offered to help the Democratic Party drive in the Presidential elections with substantial contributions in return for a commitment for an Ambassadorial post. Their offers were rejected.

The President-elect and his advisers are further understood to have made up their minds already to appoint a whole new set of Ambassadors throughout the world with ability and personality as the prime requisites.

The new Administration, it was learned, is also contemplating a major turnover in the State Department — what some sources described as the biggest shake-up in Washington has seen for years.

New talent will be brought in from the outside to supplement the present Foreign Service staff. Men who have not been recognised in the past but who have the ability will be given every chance to rise to top posts. — Reuters.

LAWS
RELAXINGLondon, Nov. 10.
The British Government today revealed the provisions of its bill to modify the country's off-licensed liquor licensing laws—but the changes are not likely to bring the retailers out in arms.Chief changes are: half-an-hour's extension of opening time for the "pubs," permission for hotel guests to buy a drink for a friend outside permitted hours, permission for wine and spirit merchants to sell in normal shop hours, not only in "licensed hours" as hitherto.
There may also be other concessions later to encourage tourism.In Wales, it is proposed to take the revolutionary step of permitting the "pubs" to open on Sundays. But there is to be a local referendum on this, and it is here that the opponents of the "demon drink" are expected to make their big stand.
There is also provision for referenda on the changes, in all English counties where 500 voters make a formal petition asking for it.—AFP.

to modernise
voting system

Washington, Nov. 10.

Assistant Senate Democratic leader, Mike
Mansfield said today he will ask the new 87th Congress to abolish the electoral college and national party conventions. He called them relics of "horse and buggy" days.Mansfield, who is in line to succeed Lyndon B. Johnson as Senate majority leader, also said he was preparing legislation to limit presidential campaigns to three or four weeks.The Montana senator said his proposal would take "the pressure off the candidates, off the people, and off the government."
Mansfield said the gruelling election contest waged by President-elect John F. Kennedy and Vice President Richard M.
Nixon showed that modern communications and transportation had made the present system obsolete.He said their campaign at first brought out some ideas for public consideration but then deteriorated into a continuous
"rehashing" and finally wound up in "a discussion of personalities."

STREAMLINED

"The old process needs to be streamlined by constitutional amendment and other means," he said in an interview with United Press International.Mansfield said his proposals still were in the formative stage but that he probably would urge the national conventions be abandoned in favor of "some kind of direct primary." This would permit rank-and-file party members to select their nominees.Once the candidates have been chosen, Mansfield said, there would be a two-week campaign period in which they could prepare for the campaign.
The campaign itself would be limited by law to only three to four weeks, he said.Mansfield said he also believed the new president should take office two weeks after hiselection "so the government is not in effect left in a state of suspension as it is now. He said this was especially important in the effective conduct of foreign affairs.The senator said his legislation also might provide that presidential campaigns be financed by the government, but he said he planned to discuss this question further with both national party organizations.Mansfield said the need to elect the president by direct popular vote was clearly demonstrated by the closeness of the race between Kennedy and Nixon.He said the electoral college, which can reach a decision contrary to the popular vote, is nothing but "a vestigial remnant that has outlived its usefulness."This is because Americans now vote for electors who then meet in Washington in mid-December to vote their preference for President. There is nothing to force them to vote for the man with the biggest popular vote although they almost inevitably do.—UPI.WALKING ARMY

NOTICED ALREADY HOW MANY OF YOUR FRIENDS ARE TAKING THE ODD DAY OFF?

FOR COMMON COLDS I REPORT A BRIGHT SPOT

BRIGHTEST SPOT on the winter horizon in medicine: human trials of Interferon have started at the Common Cold Research Unit, Salisbury.

Interferon is a protein that doctors hope will eventually protect families against colds and many other virus infections. It interferes with their spread in the body—exactly how is not yet known. It may prove to be the actual substance which healthy cells produce to ward off attack.

Interferon is a British discovery. Verdict on animal trials? "Most encouraging."

ARE you going to mollycoddle yourself this winter?—Wrap up, slam the windows, hug the fire and fill yourself with patent medicines? Or do you believe a large whisky and a day in bed is the panacea for all ills, and a brazen disregard the best protection?

Each of us has his own formula for winter fitness. It is a personal, individual business; what is right for one man may be utterly wrong and useless for another. But quite a bit is mumbo jumbo.

Four basic needs

Today, when some 300 million working days are lost each winter through sickness, there can be no place for superstition. Common sense, and new knowledge, should be the only guide.

The first fact to remember is that your body has four basic needs—food and water, oxygen, exercise and rest. The golden rule—GET PLENTY OF EACH.

In winter, four-fifths of the energy created by taking in food goes in keeping you warm. So forget about your figure. If you eat too little, you will have no reserves for both warmth and work.

Your cells need masses of oxygen. That is their second fuel. Obviously a tightly sealed room, with a fire burning, is not the best place to get it. But a word about open windows in the sick-room.

Cold air can do a great deal of harm, particularly to some

Keeping fit this winter: Four rules

BY PETER FAIRLEY

a cold, but they are not true cures.

Flu is a different matter. Flu viruses of several strains have been isolated, reduced in potency and made into a vaccine. One injection, or regular doses of tablets, will give protection for the season. It is generally accepted that they will safeguard about 30 out of every 100 who take them. And now is the time to be injected.

But they will not protect against other "winter diseases," such as the common cold, pneumonia or a cough. And if the flu virus, pops up in an entirely new guise, as it did in deadly Asian form in 1957, the chances of immunity are cut.

Sweat

If you get flu there is still nothing to beat the 48-hour sweat in bed.

Chills are another winter ailment which is quite easy to prevent but flow to clear up. Chills are simply caused by cold and poor circulation. Remedy—keep warm and mobile. Then the fresh blood can reach the extremities of your body.

Once pneumonia was known as "Captain of the Men of Death." Today it is a comparatively minor scourge. Germs and viruses of several types can be responsible. In-

Tiny viruses

Exercise keeps the oxygen pumping round to all your cells. And everyone should know the value of regular sleep. But if everyone were conscious of the vital need for these four basic commodities, the sick total would fall rapidly.

Even so, disease can strike at the fittest. What can be done?

Despite years of research there is still no answer to the common cold, except to keep away from someone who has one. There is no evidence that extra Vitamin C will ward it off, unless your normal diet is deficient in it.

But recently scientists have succeeded in isolating tiny viruses from people with colds, recognising and propagating them. So both protection and real cure appear to be imminent. "Cold cures" on the market today will help to alleviate the unpleasant effects of flaming the tiny air sacs in the lungs where waste carbon dioxide is exchanged for fresh oxygen.

But penicillin, or the broad-spectrum antibiotics which can be taken by mouth, now get to the root of the trouble quickly.

Bronchitis, on the other hand, does not respond to treatment by modern drugs so readily. The only way to avoid it completely is to go and live in Upper Egypt.

Since few relish that idea, the next best thing is to live in the south of England, and away from towns. Too much humidity, and dirty air are the cause. Dirty air. You might remember that next time you are considering a coal fire.

The germs that cause bronchitis are normally resident inside you all the time. If they were not, no inflammation would result. Today, almost the best advice a doctor can offer is still to drink a glass of very hot water on getting up, in which is dissolved a pinch of salt and another of bicarbonate of soda.

Winter's diseases are far from beaten. The old proverb is as good as ever: Prevention is better than Cure.

And if you follow the basic golden rule you stand the best possible chance.

Scientists find wealth in waste

GOVERNMENT scientists are urging British industry: "Watch your dustbins. One man's waste may be another's raw material."

The scientists believe that much of the refuse now dumped by industrial firms can be saved. Britain thousands of pounds each year, if directed to the right quarter.

Down the drain

DUST and ASH from electrically generating stations is now being used to reclaim land for industrial use. It needs no top soil. Or mixed with suitable clay, it forms a first-class building brick.

PAINT—Millions of gallons are wasted in spraying processes. Most of it goes down the drain. But scientists have now proved that it can be reclaimed, mixed with fresh paint, and used again.

WOOD SHAVINGS are now turned into chipboard, or made into briquettes for burning. The gas produced can be useful too—about 23 pounds of shavings will do the work of a gallon of petrol.

COFFEE GROUNDS make good compost, when mixed with chalk or straw. One manufacturer even had the bright idea of using them as a filler for re-surfacing a tennis court.

OAT HUSKS, fired with clay, make good bricks too. And the husks of several types of seed can be used as a clear, quick-drying, and fragrant instrument or glass. The hair on a pig's ears is as good as camel hair for a paint-brush.

Even SOOT is proving to have hidden attractions. Most British coal contains a useful amount of germanium—widely used by the electronics industry, as a semi-conducting metal—and it has been found that the most practical way of extracting it is to filter the soot deposited when coke is turned into producer gas.

How many other wastes have subtle applications? There must be hundreds. I suggest that every manufacturer in doubt should read Waste or Wealth? a new booklet issued by the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, and then advertise the contents of his duplicate to his clients—in the Industrial Salvage monthly bulletin. Britain may well benefit.

Cuevas's wife, Margaret, a grand-daughter of the late John D. Rockefeller, is a woman who resembles her flamboyant husband in only one respect—she is a considerable eccentric in her own right.

Brought up in an atmosphere of icy intellectual dedication—her father was a distinguished philosopher friend of Henry James and the American philosopher Santayana—she was well on the way to becoming a blue-stocking when, at the age of 27, she met Cuevas in Paris. The experience was too much for her, and she passionately forgot herself to fall in love.

The fortune

The intellectual objections to marrying a pleasure-loving extrovert having been overcome, there came the frightening prospect of presenting him to the grim patriarch of the family, John D. Rockefeller himself.

She need not have worried: John D., who, like Queen Victoria, had not been amused for many a long year, was completely captivated by Cuevas; so much so that he did a very remarkable thing.

The Rockefeller fortune had by that time already been distributed among sons and grandsons, and there was nothing left for Margaret.

John D., then in his seventies, thereupon decided to amass a second fortune, and it is this second fortune which he willed to the Cuevases.

It is also on the proceeds of this fortune that the Cuevas Ballet Company—a non-profit and tax-exempt organisation—has been floating so gracefully for the past 20 years.

The Cuevases have seen little of each other since the war, she preferring her home in New York and he his flat on the Quai Voltaire.

Hates Voltaire

Normally, when in Paris, she never stays in his flat. She claims this is because she despises Voltaire and would stay in the flat if the name of the street were changed.

But for the last two months she has been in Paris nursing her husband during his illness.

A plump, auburn-haired woman, with arresting Oriental eyes, she is immensely cultured and desperately shy. It is an ordeal for her to be in large company, while he, of course, is the most gregarious of men; as is often the case with opposites, they are devoted to each other.

Very coy

With whom does Prince Alexander stay when he comes to Paris? The authorities both here and in London seem pointedly coy on the subject.

In fact, she stays with her first cousin, the Countess Kourav, who, Greek herself, is married to a German Count who represents a German import-export firm in Paris.

Incidental intelligence— Jean Marais has ordered from a Paris furrier a coat made from Brazilian otter—cost $650—and a black leather jacket, lined with mink—cost $165.

A guide

Here is a vest-pocket guide to alleged plotters in Paris aiming at de Gaulle's overthrow.

So as not to inflame the considerable jealousies between them I list them in alphabetical order:

BIDAULT, Georges—France's post-war Foreign Minister for many years, whom the late Emile Bevin once described as "a nice little man." He has never forgiven his exclusion from power for the last 10 years, and his bitterness has steadily driven him towards the more lunatic fringes of the extreme Right.

I do not propose to be sunny at this expense. A brave and great man during the war, his present plight fills me only with compassion.

LE PEN, A.—A youthful MP, and ex-paratrooper, capable of head-strong acts.

FOUQUADE, Pierre—A rip-roaring demagogue, who has been in eclipse for the past two years, but has now re-emerged in alliance with General Salan and Bidault, has a small army, of toughs behind him, and ties up with Right-wing ex-servicemen's organisation.

SALAN, General—A mind as nimble as a 20-ton tank. Promoted by various Fourth Republic Governments, because he was considered "safe." De Gaulle lost no time in getting rid of him as C-in-C in Algeria.

BOUSTELLE, Jacques—He despises the Salans and the Fouquades and has no links with them. He controls a highly-efficient political machine but has little personal following in the country.

Quote of the Week—A Paris motoring correspondent: "The difference between English and French drivers is that English drivers slow down when they see a pedestrian and French drivers automatically accelerate."

—(London Express Service).

These plans include writing a sort of French bedroom farce musical about Napoleon and Josephine for Anthony Newley and Shirley Bassey directing a play, Why The Chicken, for a new company he has formed; preparing a musical about the London blitz; launching a music publishing company and searching for a new house in the centre of London.

'Particular'

"You'd have thought it wouldn't be all that difficult to get something nice for £40,000," he mutters into his cup of tea, "but those agents haven't come up with anything that's right."

"Course my needs are a bit particular. I need a big place with a triple garage, a large room for parties and a private sun-bath—see, I like to sun-bathe in the nude."

"One don't want to feel frustrated when the sun does come out, do one?"

"I lost count of how much I'm making," he confides, "but at any rate he is making enough to be able to turn down an offer for the film rights of Oliver which would have meant a down payment of a quarter of a million dollars and an aggregate profit over a period of years, amounting to 2,000,000 dollars."

Meanwhile, one of the outstanding problems is how to utilise his snowballing income. "Seeing Noel and the way he lives," says Mr Bart, "give me a taste of graceful living. I want to have a villa in the South of France and a penthouse in New York—in addition to my place in London."

Living the lush, gorgeous life of the successful young writer of musicals, is there anything lacking? Does the fulfilment come up the expectations?

"It's success as a human being what matters," he decides after due consideration, "and I don't feel I'm a success at that."

"Why not? Well, it's like I feel like I'm missing out on something."

"On what? Well, it's like I don't know quite, like security, I guess. Emotional security."

"Emotional security of one person depends on another person and, let's say, I haven't found that other person."

For a brief moment the public face—so suitable for weekends with Noel—has been discarded, and the embryonic celebrity is seen raw and real.

JACOBY on BRIDGE

SOUTH won the opening spade lead in dummy and played the jack of hearts. East played low and South was in an unusual finessing situation. Unusual because South would be silly indeed to take that finesse.

South was one of those players who believes in finessing at all times and under all conditions.

Hence, he had no problem at all with his four heart contract. He won the opening spade in dummy and promptly led the jack of hearts and let it ride. At this point the hand collapsed.

West took his king and led the ten of spades. East ruffed and returned a diamond. West took his ace and gave East another spade ruff. Down one!

Why did East happen to return a diamond and not the more tempting club? East and West were playing a suit preference convention and if West had wanted a club return he would have led his lowest spade.

This suit preference convention will be the subject of next week's articles, but meanwhile we should note that South had no reason to try this particular trump finesse and every reason not to. West had made a vulnerable overcall on a jack high suit. Surely he was likely to have six of them and the ace of hearts play would ensure South's game against anything.

In the interest of WIVES

Jill Butterfield writes for all HUSBANDS

THIS is the question: How little do you know about your wife? Have you ever seen her looking like this? I doubt it. Yet this is what goes on every day in a woman's world. Into the hairdresser's, into the beauty salons, into the shoe shops, into the hat shops and dress shops went Michael McKeown's camera. The result? Your Wife!

How little do you know about your wife?

FOR EXAMPLE, I BET SHE IS TWO-FACED

"MY husband says I'm always the same"—and frankly only a husband would. For he's the one human being so blind or so bored that he thinks the face he sleeps beside, breakfasts opposite, occasionally hides behind, is the only face of his wife.

Ever since Eve managed a pretty complicated existence with only the help of a fig leaf, woman has had more changes of face than changes of clothes in her wardrobe. There's the "Having a wonderful time" face she puts on at a party. There's the "Mummy knows best" face she puts on for the kids. There's the face that tells you she's trying to be furious, the one that she's decided to forgive.

FOR EXAMPLE:

What is she up to while you are at work?

AND what of the other face that goes on in front of the mirror? The one that's composed of powder, pancake, and wishful thinking. Do you know just how much, dear dotting husband, that is costing you?

Times, public opinion, and a woman's place have certainly changed since a Bill presented to Parliament 200 years ago demanded that "All women that shall seduce and betray into matrimony any of His Majesty's subjects by scents, paints, cosmetic washes, artificial teeth, and high-heeled shoes shall incur the penalty of witchcraft, and the marriage be declared null and void."

COSMETICS

But even in this day of advertising and age of exposure you'd be surprised how little a husband knows about what goes on and into his wife's face—ad how much less he knows about its cost.

Billy Butlin told me: "I've never bought my wife cosmetics. I suppose she does use make-up."

Chris Michelson told me: "I haven't a clue what my wife puts on her face. A bit of powder I suppose and what's that stuff—foundation?"

So for these two and the 13,000,000 other husbands who are bewildered, bewildered, or broke by the beauty business which annually takes £70,000,000 of their money, I give you my quick guide to where the spare cash and spare time of your household goes.

And before you hit the ceiling and leave home let me state that everything she does, dear husband, she does for you.

Take those rosy lips...

Did you know that on to 70 per cent of the female lips in this country goes 233,000 pounds in weight of lipstick a year?

And did you know that lipstick shares the same ingredients—Titanium—so jet engines?

Take that pearly skin...

To keep it smooth 1,162,000 pounds in weight of powder dusts 80 per cent of the female faces of Britain.

Take that crowning glory...

Your cash keeps open 25,000 hairdressing salons all over the country and 65 per cent of your wives visit them an average of once a fortnight.

If you married a blonde don't be surprised to find yourself living with a brunette two weeks, a redhead the other.

For there are 70 basic shades a woman can dye her hair, and between the ages of 16 and 60, 20 per cent of them do.

(Statemen note: the largest percentage of dyed hair is found in the South of England.)

PICTURE BY DAVID BAILEY

Her danger signal

If the sultry siren that stares out of the glass is a new one on you, it's a danger signal.

STOP celebrating your anniversary with a bunch of carnations.

TRY a nice big bottle—champagne, meat—she counts here.

If the last holiday you had was your honeymoon, and the picture you carry to work each morning is of the cheerful little woman and her bony bounding blood, watch her when she manages a rare minute before the mirror.

If you don't recognise her face—the glacier glance of a beauty with a couple of minutes and a cool million—then it's time you came down to earth.

Her true picture

BUT there's also her very own fundamental face—and that's the one that could tell you quite a lot that puzzles you about the unknown woman you married till death do you part.

That Face is the most private thing about her.

That Face is something you'd never normally see.

That Face is the one she puts on in front of the glass.

That Face will give you the true picture of how she sees herself.

And if more husbands knew how to read all the posturing and putting that goes on between a girl and a looking glass I'm willing to bet we wouldn't have over 24,000 divorces a year.

If you carry in your heart and your wallet the picture of the little rosy-faced bride you married one morning in May, just take a look one day at the way she sees herself.

And when she gives you a "funny" smile—

beware

HER honeymoon was over, honey, three children ago.

STOP spending every evening with the boys.

TRY investing in a baby-sitter instead.

If you've reached the sober years of discretion and you no longer carry her photograph at

Sleeping side of the face—but there are other sides all, limp along to her dressing-table and watch her own picture of herself.

You think the way she's smiling a bit girlish and her hat would look better on your secretary?

Poppa, you're in for a lonely old age.

STOP thinking of her in terms of lavender, old lace, and a rocking chair by the fire.

TRY buying her some of the frumpies you couldn't afford in the days when you thought her young enough to wear them.

The Lilliputians

—General Tin Tells Knarf All About Them—

By MAX TRELL

"GENERAL TIN," said Knarf, the Shadow Boy with the Turned-About Name, to his old friend, the Tin Soldier, "you're a great explorer, aren't you?"

General Tin, who was standing by the Playroom door leaning on his moustache, which he held in front of him like a staff, said:

"Well, I guess there are more important explorers than I am, but I don't know who they are."

Waited for question

After this modest remark, General Tin stood waiting for Knarf to ask the next question.

Knarf waited no time doing so. "What I'd like to know, General Tin, is whether you ever visited the land of Lilliputians?"

General Tin gave a start of surprise.

"Lilliputians?" he asked. He repeated the name several times to himself as though he was trying to remember where he had heard it before.

"Ah, yes," he exclaimed at last. "That's where all the Little Folk live, isn't it?"

Knarf nodded his head.

Read about them

"I read about the Lilliputians in a book," he said to General Tin, "but I was wondering if you had ever seen them yourself."

"Indeed I did," General Tin said. "I spent about a month with them and then, when I returned home, I was given a very pleasant surprise."

Knarf asked General Tin what kind of a surprise he meant.

"I was unpacking my trunk," General Tin started, "and I was just shaking out some of the wrinkles in a coat that I had left hanging on a hook all the time I was with the Lilliputians when, all of a sudden, I heard tiny laughing voices."

Four little faces came looking at my coat and there, to my intense delight, I saw four little Lilliputians, faces peering up at me from one of the pockets."

Knarf clapped his hands in excitement.

"Four Lilliputians?" he exclaimed. "I took a closer look at my coat and there, to my intense delight, I saw four little Lilliputians, faces peering up at me from one of the pockets."

Knarf clapped his hands in excitement.

Knarf instantly demanded to know what General Tin did with his four little Lilliputians the Boy, the Girl, the Dog and the Cat.

Built tiny house

"I took them out of my pocket at once, of course," replied General Tin. "I built a tiny house out of a shoe box for the Boy and the Girl. I made a cushion for the Cat out of a finger of glove stuffed with cotton. And I built a comfortable kennel for the Dog out of an empty match box."

"I let them all live on a table which I had covered with a green velvet cloth. It looked exactly like a grassy field."

"I let them would have liked a tree and a lake and a mountain to climb," said Knarf.

General Tin smiled.

Minutaire replicas

"I gave them all those things, too," he said.

"The tree was the geranium plant. The lake was a soap plate of water. The mountain was a rock that I brought in from the park."

"And I also made the Boy and Girl a swing out of two lengths of string attached to the branch of the geranium. I made them a bicycle out of wheels from a clock and roller skates out of pins and pennies. And I sand bucket out of a thimble."

Ate everything

But what could you feed those tiny little Lilliputians?" asked Knarf.

"They ate everything I did," said General Tin, "except what much, less. I made tiny plates and cups and saucers and forks and spoons and knives that were so small that I could hold them all on the end of my little finger."

The Lilliputian Cat used to enjoy a drop of milk three times a day. And the Lilliputian Dog used to wag his Lilliputian tail—it was no bigger than the end of a piece of thread—when I gave him a crumb of hamburger."

General Tin finished, telling his story.

"But what happened to them?" Knarf asked.

"Wanted to go home."

"After about a month," said General Tin, "they decided they wanted to go home again."

"But how did you get them home?" asked Knarf.

"It was very easy," said General Tin. "I put them in an envelope and mailed them."

Little Faces were looking out of General Tin's coat pocket.

"What a wonderful thing it must be to be a Lilliputian," Knarf said.

But all that General Tin would say to this was that we could all be Lilliputians if only we didn't grow up.

Rupert and the Sky-boat—43

As there is hardly any wind the huge balloon in the sky is drifting very slowly and the two little pals are able to reach the other wood without being hit by anything falling from it. Rupert chooses a large tree under which to shelter, and he calls Margee to join him. They hear things falling around them and then, when all is silent, Rupert ventures to step out. "Hi, Rupert, look at this, she says in a strange voice. One of those bits is still coming down. And do you see? It's not dropping, it's drifting!"

British LTA bars Kramer Cup matches

London, Nov. 10. The British Lawn Tennis Association today clamped down on some of the activities of Jack Kramer's professional tennis troupe.

A meeting of the Association's Council decided it will not allow any matches in the Kramer Cup Competition — the professionals' answer to the Davis Cup — to be played on the courts of affiliated lawn tennis clubs.

Beyond the announcement, Councilors refused to make any comment on the decision. Association Secretary Basil Reay said: "I cannot add anything except to say that it affects only the Kramer Cup and none of the other professional promotions." — UPI.

Men's World Volleyball Tournament now in the final stage

Rio De Janeiro, Nov. 10.

The World Volleyball Tournament enters its final stage in the Men's Division here tonight.

The Soviet Union faces Rumania in a battle that is to knock one of them out of a three-way tie for first place with defending champion Czechoslovakia. The Czechs are idle, but will meet the Russians tomorrow.

The Rumanians, meanwhile, had to go four sets to beat Hungary, 15-15, 15-5, 15-5, 15-8. The Czechs easily defeated Venezuela 15-5, 15-2, 15-0.

The Czechs entered this final stage with a clear advantage over the tiring Russians and Rumanians. All teams had an off day on Tuesday, but went back into action last night.

Advantage

The Russians and Rumanians went against fairly tough adversaries while the Czechs had a mere workout against the South Americans. But more to the advantage of the Czechs was the fact they would get another rest tonight while the Russians and Rumanians battle to cling to their places at the top of the standings.

The Men's Championship ends next Monday. Each team has eight games to play in these finals.

In the Women's Division, defending champion Russia and Czechoslovakia are returning to action after layoffs since early in the finals. Both are tied for the lead. The Czechs are to meet the United States and the Russians face Poland. There were no games in the Women's Division last night. — AP.

CARRIE MAY BE THE ONE TO GIVE LUCKY TICKET HOLDER RECORD SWEEPSTAKE PRIZE

The Hongkong Jockey Club's Third Race Meeting of the season will be a two-day affair, the first half to be run tomorrow afternoon and the second half on Monday, November 14.

On the first day there will be 8 races with the first event starting at 2.00 pm.

On the second day the programme of 9 races will begin at noon.

The main event tomorrow will be the Kwangtung Handicap for Class 3 ponies over the Champion distance, on which the mammoth Cash Sweep will be decided. With about a day's sale of tickets still to go, the first prize is already worth the record sum of $1,400,000.

Here are my estimates of the chances:

FIRST RACE

Waterfall Bay Handicap (First Section): One Mile.

The opening race is confined to Class 4 ponies to be ridden by red letter jockeys. A perusal of the entries would seem to indicate that the following should be prominent: King Kong (H. Fattydad), Balkan Monarch (Steven Lu), Welfare (Sonny Shum) and Klava (M. A. C. Rosa).

With King Kong, H. Fattydad has a great opportunity of winning this race, but he should expect strong opposition from Balkan Monarch or Welfare both of which are capable of giving King Kong a good fight. Then there is Klava which is also considered good enough to extend these names above.

SECOND RACE

Middle Spur Plate: From 1 1/4 Mile Post.

Class C, 1900 ponies will fight out the issue in this race. Honey (H. M. Botelho) is in fine fettle and can be counted upon for a creditable performance.

As an outsider bet: Justin (J. Cruz) in mind.

THIRD RACE

Kwangtung Handicap: 1 1/4 Miles.

This race for Class 3 ponies is the main event of the afternoon.

Carrie (Alex Lam) is showing top form and should be firm favourite in this race.

Ready to offer opposition are Bonita (P. Plumby), Renewa (Starr Liu) and Jake (H. M. Botelho). These ponies have shown much promise in morning gallops and are dully capable of extending the favourite.

Native Prince (Huns) is not bad and as an outsider is worth following.

FOURTH RACE

Dragon's Back Plate: From 2 Mile Post.

Golden Rule (Alex Lam) was a failure at the last meeting.

but as the distance is longer it may redeem itself tomorrow. Tudor Conquest (P. Plumby) has been doing good early morning track work lately and chances are rather bright. Benetation (Albert Lam) is recommended for a long shot.

FIFTH RACE

Waterfall Bay Handicap (Second Section): One Mile.

Oscar Price (P. Plumby) and Fenella (Chun Kit) should fight out the issue in this event. I prefer the former.

Castle Peak (Albert Lam) is dangerous too and longer shots are City of Victoria (Alex Lam) and Lisa (Starr Liu).

SIXTH RACE

Turret Hill Plate: From 2 Mile Post.

A stiff fight among Malchik (H. K. Hung), Viva Day (R. Tai), Forget-me-not (H. M. Botelho) and Eux Vorag (J. Cruz) is anticipated in this race and the issue is expected to remain in doubt until the last yard of ground has been covered.

SEVENTH RACE

Waterfall Bay Handicap (Third Section): One Mile.

The third batch of Class 4 ponies will battle out the finish in this race.

Judging from their training performances, I strongly fancy House Top (H. K. Hung).

Okay (R. Tai) is a fast moving animal and if it can take the lead there will be no catching it.

Tinkerbell will be piloted by Cruz and may turn the tables on the above two.

For big money I recommend Mercury (H. Fattydad).

Sandy Bay Handicap (First Section): From 1 1/4 Mile Post.

The day's programme will be concluded with a race for the first section of Class 3 ponies.

Wing Che (Sonny Shum) is in sparkling form and is ready to register a win here.

Green Valley (Alex Lam) is good enough to offer opposition and I think it will be very close.

Vinget El Un (H. K. Cheng) and Oriental Pearl (C. A. Lee) can also be relied on to give a good account of themselves.

As an outsider, I suggest Flying Filly (H. K. Hung).

Max Faulkner and Dave Thomas, the Ryder Cup golf internationals, are teaming up to tackle the American winter tournament circuit in the New Year.

Maxie and Dave will jet out together on December 23 for the Los Angeles Open. They will play their way across the continent until the U.S. Masters at Augusta, Georgia, in April.

This brand new go-it-together team all grew out of a chat between shots during last month's Match Play Championship when in a ferocious third-round tie Dave beat Max at the 22nd.

Third circuit

For globe-trotting 25-year-old Thomas it will be a third session on the U.S. circuit, the toughest golf school in the world.

But for gay-dressing Faulkner, the one and only Clown Prince of British golf, it will be a first assault on the American circuit — at the ripe age of 41.

Rainbow boy Maxie has made five quick trips to the States with Ryder Cup teams and for special invitation tournaments. But never before has he tackled the rugged weekly grind of the tournament tour.

Why start at 44? I asked Faulkner at his country home in Godalming, Surrey.

"For the first time in my life I feel ready to tackle the Yanks on their own ground. There are four good reasons."

The handsome, athletic Max, one-time RAF boxing champion PT instructor, certainly could regain Ryder Cup ranking after a three-month Transatlantic time-out.

First outlay for Faulkner and Thomas when they step off that jet in neon-bright Los Angeles will be 500 dollars (£178) for a self-drive hire car.

Caddies and entrance fees will cost them a further £250 each Motel rooms and meals will add around £200 each.

But both are cheerfully prepared to gamble some £700 of their own bank balances in exchange for a cut of the 1,000,000-dollar U.S. prize kitty. Good luck to 'em both.

Cut this out and take it to the races tomorrow for your guidance

Starters, Weights And Riders

Starters, weights and riders for tomorrow's Happy Valley race meeting are given below. This list is based on the official list issued by the Hongkong Jockey Club. As an additional guide to form, the placings of the ponies in their last three starts will be found on the left hand side of their names. The names of ponies are all listed according to the positions drawn. The first named pony has drawn the No. 1 position, the second named the No. 2 and so on.

Harmonizing is 5-2 top favourite for today's Washington International Laurel, Nov. 10.

Harmonizing, the six-year-old American chestnut gelding, was installed as 5-2 favourite for the $100,000 Washington International here today, on the eve of the 1½-mile race. Substituted for the injured champion Sword Dancer yesterday, Harmonizing was preferred to last year's winner, Bald Eagle, who is now rated a 3-1 chance.

Of the foreign challengers, the French three-year-old, enjoys pride of place at 4-1 behind the two American entries. The French horse, winner of the Prix De L'Arc De Triomphe, is followed at 8-1 by Italy's Milan Gold Cup winner Rio Marin, who is considered the "big danger" if the going is soft.

Hautain, the other French runner, is backed at 10-1 together with British representatives Prolife and Apostile—both crack three-year-olds. Santa Severa, also Italian and the only filly in the race, is rated a 12-1 shot followed at 20-1 by Ireland's Farney Fox and the Soviet entries Zageb and Zadorny.

Liking for turf

This market, the first official one issued so far, was released after the 11 horses in the field for this weight-for-age event had light workouts this morning.

In America, where only trainer betting is permitted, course officials—usually the handicapper—traditionally set the opening odds, printing it in the Progress as the "Morning Line."

The horses were restricted to light gallops this morning after overnight rains had softened the track.

The favourite, who was claimed for only $6,500 ($2,320) last July, sprang into racing prominence with a convincing win in another $100,000 weight-for-age class.

League says 'No' to Real v Spurs at Wembley

By CLIVE TOYE

The dream of every British soccer fan, a match between Tottenham and Real Madrid at Wembley, vanished in a cloud of tobacco smoke during a meeting of the Football League in a London hotel last week.

Real Madrid wanted to play the match. They agreed on a fee of £32,000.

They agreed to give £5,000 of this to any British sporting charity and pay their own expenses.

And they agreed to play the match at Wembley on December 7.

Tottenham Hotspur were giving the idea a proper consideration. Permission of the Football Association and the League, however, was necessary. Now the League has killed the proposition before it has been put officially before them.

'DON'T LIKE IT'

League secretary Alan Hardaker said after the meeting: "The management committee have turned down the match. They don't like the idea."

"The management committee would not consider a game between Real Madrid and anybody at Wembley. We've just decided that this morning."

The fee requested by Real Madrid would have been a world record for any club side. Their treasurer, Senor Ramundo Saporta, said: "After all, we were putting our whole reputation at stake."

Spurs' supporters, however, may yet see Real Madrid play at White Hart Lane.

The clubs have agreed to play when a date is available later in the season.

Real Madrid will then be satisfied with a much smaller fee, about £11,000.

But that is poor compensation for the 100,000 fans who would have mortgaged their all to see Real Madrid play the new Tottenham Hotspur.

Civilians may prove too strong for Navy in week's main hockey match

By NUMPERE

There will again be no men's hockey league fixtures this weekend but interest in this sport will be kept up with the Combined Civilians vs Royal Navy match at King's Park on Sunday at 2.30 pm and two ladies' league matches on Saturday.

The selectors have chosen a strong all-round Combined Civilians side which should prove too strong for the Royal Navy who were beaten 9-3 by the Army on Tuesday.

However, this was the Navy's first appearance and after their match against the RAF at Kai Tak this evening, they should show improved form as a team on Sunday.

Civilians team

The Combined Civilians team has been selected as follows: Kadir (Prisons), Dillon (Nav Bharat), Pedruco (Recreio), Valoma (Macensis), Castro (Recreio), R. A. Silva (Recreio), Alorco (Recreio), O. K. Dallah (IRC), Zia Hussain (Prisons), Gardner (Nav Bharat), L. Gutierrez (Recreio), Reserves: Y. Khan (Nav Bharat), J. Colloco (Recreio), and J. Capitul (Macensis).

In the only two matches in the Ladies' Division, Recreio should prove much too strong for St George's and the better game will be that between KCC and Gremlins 'A' who are lying second and third respectively in the league table.

Gremlins who were beaten by Recreio in their last outing should have the edge over KCC and take both points.

Weekend fixtures

TOMORROW
St George's vs Recreio, at King's Park, 4 pm.

KCC vs Gremlins 'A' at King's Park 2.30 pm.

SUNDAY
Combined Civilians vs Royal Navy at King's Park, 2.30 pm.

Canadians start training for Thomas Cup tie

Toronto, Nov. 10. Twenty-six of Canada's top-flight badminton stars start training today for the six places on Canada's 1961 Thomas Cup team.

Canada is drawn to play the United States in the first round of the Thomas Cup competition, with matches tentatively scheduled for Toronto's Curlton Club Courts on February 24-25. In the last two meetings between Canada and the United States, Canada lost in 1958, nine matches to none, and in 1955 was edged 5-4.

Chief among the Canadian threats are the country's No. 1 star, Jim Carnworth of Toronto, Bert Ferguson from Vancouver, Toronto's Bev Wercot, and Vancouver's Dave McTaggart, now a Toronto resident.

Among the 22 nations competing in the 1961 Thomas Cup are defending champions Indonesia, Canada, the United States, Malaysia, Thailand, Denmark, India, England and Scotland.—UPI.

Costa Ricans win rough match

Singapore, Nov. 10. Costa Rica's Liga Deportiva Atluolense soccer team today easily beat Singapore Selection 4-1, in a match marred by rough play.—AP.

Umpires' course

Information has been received from WO II J. Howe, Hon Secretary of the Army Hockey Umpires Association, that the course arranged for prospective hockey umpires will now commence on November 24. Those accepted for this course will be notified by post.

SOCCER NEWS FROM ABROAD

Spain and Russia have just honoured some of their footballers. Three players, Di Stefano, Garay and Ramallets, have been decorated by General Franco with the Order of Queen Isabella the Catholic, while in the Soviet Union, Kossarev, Bouboukin and Metrovell, members of the team which won the Cup of European Nations, have received the title of "Masters of Sport."

With typical thoroughness, Argentina are to tour Europe at the beginning of next year as part of their preparation for the World Cup series in Chile in 1962. Spain, Germany, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Norway will be visited.

Chuck McKinley at top form in opening round of NSW Tennis Tournament

Sydney, Nov. 10.

Young American Davis Cup newcomer, Chuck McKinley, was in top form in the first round of the new South Wales Men's Singles Championship today when he defeated John Cottrill of New South Wales.

McKinley, 19, from St Louis, won 6-0, 6-2, 6-2.

Overseas players fared better today than at the opening of the Queensland Championship a fortnight ago when all but two of them were beaten in the first round.

British Davis Cup player Mike Sangster scored an impressive 6-1, 6-3, 6-3 win over Victorian Colin Stubs in their first round match.

Sangster's doubles partner, Mike Hann, and Brazilian star Carlos Fernandez also won well.

Hann defeated W. Blob of New South Wales, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, and Fernandez beat P. Tarrant, also of New South Wales, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Baby of the American team, Dennis Ralston, caused a surprise by losing a set to little-known New Zealander, Richard Hawkes, but finally won 6-0, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

was suffering from the after-effects of a cholera inoculation.

Newspapers claimed the withdrawal was brought about by a dispute over expenses.

Malaya's Tan Song-kean could manage to take only four games in losing to Victorian Brian Tobin, Tobin won 6-2, 6-1, 6-1, C. Khunke of West Germany, beat K. Baker of South Australia, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0, and Barry Mackay of the United States won over J. Soutar of New Zealand 6-2, 6-0, 6-4.—China Mail Special.

First upset

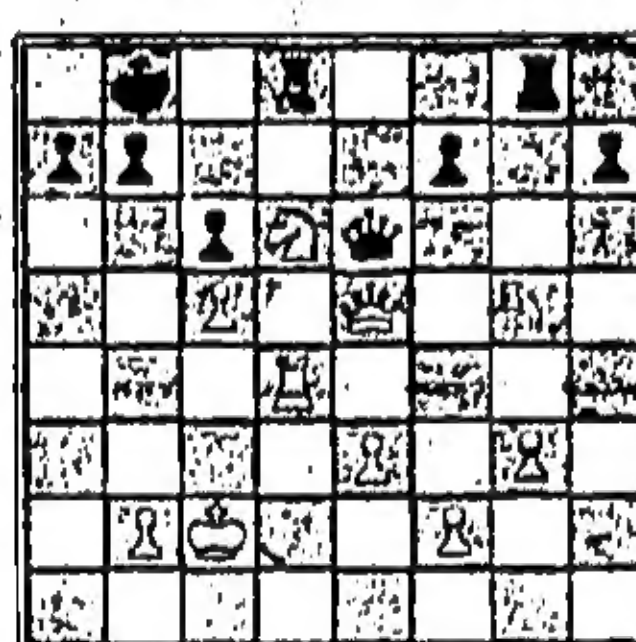

No. 2 foreign seed, American Earl Buchholz, was given a walkover into the second round when Queenslander Max Collins scratched.

The first upset came when New South Wales' Allan Shapier, who has just left the junior ranks, soundly defeated the No. 8 foreign seed, Italian Davis Cup player, Sergio Tacchini, 6-1, 6-4, 6-0. The Italian was no match for the heavy-hitting left-hander on the Sydney White City court's fast grass, and he was well beaten by the end of the second set.

Queenslander O. French had a walkover when N. Pictrungelli of Italy withdrew. Italian team manager said that Pictrungelli

SWEATERS POUR INTO HONGKONG

St. Christopher's Orphanage has received a large shipment of sweaters from Church World Service for use by abandoned babies received at the orphanage during the winter months.

The project is the result of a conversation last summer between Mrs. Elbert E. Gates, Jr., wife of the Director of Church World Service, and Mrs. Walton Tonge, Superintendent of the Babies' Section of the Orphanage, who indicated a great need for the sweaters.

Mrs. Gates offered to appear for the sweaters through friends in the United States. Although the original target goal was 600, the response has been overwhelming and it is expected that as many as 1,500 sweaters will be given by the time the project is ended.

HUNDREDS

One of the chief donors to the project has been the American Baptist women in Indiana who have supplied hundreds of the sweaters. Groups and individuals from all parts of the United States also have responded.

INTERESTING CHORAL GROUP CONCERT

By D. E. GRAY

A CONCERT of variety and interest was presented by the Choral Group last night at Lake Yew Hall, under the directorship of Maestro Elisio Gualdi.

The first half opened with "Gloria" by Vivaldi, a work only discovered and performed a few years ago. The chorus is made up of 38 voices, male and female, and for its size, produced some very pleasant music.

A group of Chinese songs followed — and as I have said more than once before, Chinese singers do them very well, for they are to much at home in them. I particularly liked "The Tea Picking Song" which reminded me of my first hearing of this song in Peking.

The accompaniment was provided by piano and Hammond organ which was a pleasant change from the usual scratch orchestra we have had before, and a great improvement.

The second half was devoted to an Overture by Mozart "The Impresario Perplexed". This was produced and directed by Rev. Father Sheridan.

It is a humorous piece, and the recitatives were in excellent taste and colour. Both acting and singing gave obvious pleasure to the audience, particularly that of Lola Young, soprano.

New flood protection measure

About 1,100 feet of the Shing Mun River between Tai-po-road and the railway bridge at Shatin is to be trained to allow for urban development adjoining Tai Wai Village.

The training of this section of the river will protect the adjacent cultivated fields from flooding. Work, starting in about a month's time, will take about six months to complete.

Traffic offices moving to Rumsey-st

The Traffic Licensing Office, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles and the Traffic Records Office will be closed tomorrow and on Monday, November 14, to facilitate the removal of these three offices to new accommodation on the Rumsey-street reclamation.

The three offices will re-open for public business at the new building on the Rumsey-street reclamation next Tuesday, November 15. The telephone numbers remain unchanged.

Big demand for sweep tickets

The sale of tickets for the Kwangtung Handicap soared to 3,070,000 and is expected to reach 3,200,000 this evening. Based on this figure, the first prize will be $1,451,520 — an all time high for the Kwangtung Handicap.

The previous record was the first prize of last year which stood at $1,211,112 on October 17.

The race is to be run tomorrow.

Boys and Girls Club bazaar opened

The goods on display were made by boys and girls ranging from 6-15. They included knitted articles, crochet work, woodwork and decorations. The children who made these articles came from six centres in the resettlement areas in Hongkong and Kowloon.

Chinese to head Govt examiners board

The appointments of Mr. Cheong Wai-fung as Chairman of the Government Board of Examiners and Mr. Cheng Tung-choi as Deputy Chairman of the Board are announced in the Government Gazette today.

Mr. Cheong Wai-fung is the first Chinese officer to be appointed Chairman. He succeeds Major H.F.G. Chauvin, who has been Chairman since 1957.

Mr. Cheong retired from the Education Department in 1959 when he was Principal of Queen Elizabeth School. He is a member of the Board of Trustees and College Council of United College.

Mr. Cheng has been a member of the Board of Examiners since 1951 and has acted as Chairman since March this year. Major Chauvin has been a member of the Board of Examiners since 1940. In 1954 he was appointed Deputy Chairman and has been Chairman since 1957.

The Government Board of Examiners is for the examination of candidates for posts in the Civil Service.

Auditors list

The name of Mr. Au-yung Yik-fung has been added to the Authorized List of Auditors, the Government Gazette notified today.

HONGKONG-TAIWAN NARCOTICS RING SMASHED

Taipei, Nov. 10.

The smashing of a big gang of drug traffickers was announced in Taipei today by the Formosa Garrison Command.

The Command said 34 people had been arrested and efforts were being made to arrest 20 others still at large.

The gang was accused of having smuggled a large amount of narcotics into Formosa from Hongkong in fishing boats since 1958. The arrested people included Formosa-born Yang Chen-chieh, the alleged ringleader.—AP.

A new thoroughfare linking Clear Water Bay-road and Tai-po-road at the 3 1/2-milestone in north Kowloon has been named Lung Cheung-road, it was notified in the Government Gazette today.

The new road, about 18,000 feet long connects the Li Cheng Uk, Kowloon Tsai and Lo Fu Ngan resettlement estates.

Another road commencing at Tai-po-road about 250-feet south-east of 3 1/2-milestone and terminating at Lung Cheung-road has been named Tai Wai Ping-road.

Bills operative

The Public Health and Urban Services Ordinance and the Public Health (Animals and Birds) (Amendment) Ordinance which were enacted recently by the Legislative Council are operative as from today, it was notified in the Government Gazette today.

From the Files

25 years AGO

November 1935

FROM the SCM Post's 25 Years Ago column (November, 1910): "The society for the cutting of the queue is very strong in Hongkong. A prominent Chinese gentleman expressed the opinion yesterday that at least one thousand local Chinese would discard their queues on the 5th of December."

"There would be many more, he said, but for the uncertainty which prevails as to the head dress to be adopted."

"Some men favour the retention of the old skull cap and button; others thought that the addition of a peak to the cap would be an improvement; there were others again who were of the opinion that the conventional European straw hat should be the headgear of the future."

"Not a few thought that a new model of straw hat sufficiently broad of brim to cover the shoulders would be more acceptable, less incongruous and quite distinctive."

MR J. L. McPherson who left the Colony some time ago after a residence here of many years, connected with YMCA work, returned to Hongkong by the Empress of Asia yesterday, to take up the post of General Adviser to the Chinese YMCA.

The Board of Directors of the Chinese "Y" wrote to Mr. McPherson after his retirement requesting his return in the advisory capacity.

Rain to continue

A quarter of an inch of rain fell between 10 pm yesterday and 9 am today.

It was caused by a large upper-air disturbance over China that triggered off disturbances over the whole of east China and the China Sea.

A spokesman for the Royal Observatory said this morning that "the weather is expected to remain unsettled until the disturbance has moved away towards the east. By then it will clear up."

"Until the disturbance is over, it is likely to continue cloudy with periods of rain," he added.
